Dear OLOG Family,

We are celebrating the fourth Sunday of the year and our scriptures are calling us to recognize God's presence among as "one of us". Moses speaks to the people about the one among us that he will raise up. The possessing Spirit was first to recognize Jesus as

"holy one of God."

Maybe we could do something, some small thing, take one small step that would help others to recognize God's holiness in our midst. We could become more aware of the many small but important ways that we might as individuals and as a community become a more inviting, welcoming presence of God here in Hinckley. Join me in asking the Holy Spirit for guidance as we step into the future as the "holy ones of God".

I met with the parish pastoral council and finance councils this past week. We had a great meeting. We reviewed the financial report of the past five months, the diocesan audit that took place in September, the search process for our new pastor, and the Lenten and Easter plans for the coming months. All seems to be in positive shape and working toward a very hopeful Easter to come.

With my prayers,
 Fr. Estok

CHRISTMAS POINSETTIAS

The Art and Liturgy Committee is grateful to all our parishioners that donated to the Christmas decorating fund. The poinsettias still look wonderful. As long as they continue to look good, we will keep them in the sanctuary giving glory to God! Hopefully, they will stay nice until Lent begins. In the past we have always allowed the parishioners to take the poinsettias home. They will be available, one per family, after the 11:00 Mass on Sunday, February 11th. Again, thank you for your generosity!

YOUR MERCY: TRANSFORMING LIVES & COMMUNITIES

Many parishioners received letters in January, inviting their support of the Annual Catholic Charities Appeal. Please pray for the good work of Catholic Charities and make a pledge today. Your donation makes a difference!

Your support of the 2018 Catholic Charities Annual Appeal will help to serve those individuals who are most in need and most vulnerable. From Matthew's Gospel: Whatever you did for the least of these, you did it for me. When we feed the hungry, take care of the sick, and welcome strangers, we are also serving Jesus himself.

Catholic Charities appreciates your donation and will take special care to use it wisely in providing essential programs and services to people in need throughout all eight counties of the Diocese of Cleveland.

You are invited to view stories of inspiration at www.catholiccommunity.org/2018Appeal. You can hear Bishop Perez narrate stories of people in three counties who were helped by Catholic Charities in 2017.

Please note that the 6th, 7th, and 8th grade PSR has class on January 29th.

Saturday, February 3rd is the 9th grade PSR retreat. This is mandatory. All service hours, questions and saint reports are due this day.

PSR is still selling Olympia nuts after the Masses next weekend. Perfect for the super bowl!

APPROPRIATE BEHAVIOR IN CHURCH

By Fr. William Saunders

I am a senior citizen. Lately, I have been appalled at the way people act in Church, how they dress and how they pay attention to the Mass. It certainly is not the way it was when I grew up.

Actually, I have received several letters over the past few weeks concerning poor manners at church, even one from a new immigrant to our country. In one sense, we should not be surprised at the lack of proper manners and dress at church. After all, we live in a society where people pierce their various body parts—eyebrows, noses and tongues—just like the farmers do with their animals (although even they were spared tongue piercing). Many companies now have “casual Friday” where male employees no longer have to wear suits and ties and women employees, suits or dresses; however, The Wall Street Journal recently noted that many employees are now looking more like slobs on “casual Friday” and consequently approaching their work like slobs. More and more I see casual attire at weddings and funerals, which were always considered “dress-up” events. Many people have lost all sense of basic politeness, like holding the door open for someone, especially a lady, or offering a seat on the Metro for a lady, especially an expectant mother or an elderly person. (I was raised to be a gentleman, so call me a chauvinist or old fashioned if you like.) Seldom do the words please and thank you echo in our ears. Yes, we should not be surprised if such a lack of manners overflows into our churches.

While we may not be surprised at such a state of affairs, we should not condone it or lower ourselves to it. In regard to church, each of us should strive for good “Mass Manners,” and parents especially should make sure they are teaching their children good Mass Manners.

Therefore, as a priest and one who was raised by good, diligent parents who remembered the days when men always wore a coat and tie to church and ladies were expected to wear a hat and gloves, I will present what I consider good Mass Manners.

First, let us start at how we prepare for Mass. People should dress appropriately. In our society, we still consider coat and tie for men and dresses or suits for women appropriate attire for weddings, for special parties (even Christmas parties) and certainly for meeting dignitaries, like the pope or the president. We should then dress in the same way to meet our Lord, present in the holy Eucharist. Granted, perhaps in the summer we could be a little more casual, but we can still be neat, clean, and properly clothed. Frankly, shorts should be worn only by very young children; T-shirts should be kept for picnics; spandex pants and tights should be reserved for exercise; and halter tops should be burned. In deciding what to wear, we should be thinking, “I am dressing to meet my Lord and to participate in the mystery of my salvation.

To be continued next week.

OUR FRIENDS THE SAINTS

St. Thomas Aquinas - Thomas Aquinas is known as one of the most brilliant and greatest of philosophers and theologians of the 13th century. He was born around 1225, but perhaps as late as 1227. At the age of 5, he was taken by his parents to the Benedictine monastery at Monte Cassino for an education. His parents hoped that he would become a Benedictine. At the age of eighteen Thomas was sent to Rome to finish his studies. There he was attracted to the philosophy of Aristotle and left the Benedictines to join the Dominicans. Upset by this, his mother arranged for Thomas' brothers to capture him and he was kept at home for more than a year.

When he was finally allowed to leave, he returned to the Dominicans and went to Paris and Cologne where he studied with St. Albert the Great. Thomas' humility and quietness led to his being called the "dumb ox", but St. Albert the Great had heard Thomas' brilliant argument of a thesis, and predicted that his doctrinal teachings would one day "resound throughout the world".

Thomas was ordained a priest in Cologne in 1250, taught at two universities, and received his Doctor of Theology degree in 1257 along with his friend St. Bonaventure. He was so ardent in his teachings and writings in defense of Christian truth that when asked to be Archbishop of Naples, he begged to be excused so that he could continue his writing. Had he become Archbishop his greatest work the Summa Theologica most probably would not have been written. His apologetics showed that no scientific truth is opposed to Revelation, and that we come to know God through faith (Divine Revelation) and reason (natural human knowledge).

Thomas Aquinas did not finish the Summa Theologica which he stopped writing on December 6, 1273. He died on March 7, 1274 and was canonized on July 18, 1323 with the title Doctor of the Church. He is the patron of students and universities.
